

“TAM is really one of the most unique and well-structured study opportunities for young people with global mindsets and career aspirations. The comparative approach provided by TAM, both in the academic framework and through the experiential lens of studying at multiple world-renowned universities, really allows you to build a multidimensional cultural and intellectual skill set. I loved this program and really think it’s special – it was intellectually exciting, community-driven, and full of opportunity to grow as a thinker and researcher, not to mention as a global traveler and young transatlantic leader. Thank you TAM!”

Anna Brashear, TAM Graduate from USA

Contact

Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin
hu-berlin.de/tam
+49 30 2093 66545
info.emtam@sowi.hu-berlin.de

University of North Carolina
at Chapel Hill
www.tam.unc.edu
+1 919 962 4507
tam@unc.edu

THE UNIVERSITY of NORTH CAROLINA
at CHAPEL HILL

ORTA DOĞU TEKNİK ÜNİVERSİTESİ
MIDDLE EAST TECHNICAL UNIVERSITY

UNIVERSITY OF BATH

SCIENCES PO
Grenoble

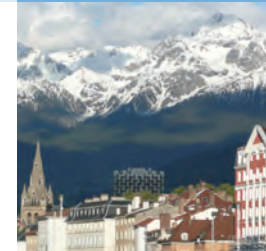

UNIVERSITÀ
DI SIENA 1240

HUMBOLDT-UNIVERSITÄT
ZU BERLIN

TAM

TransAtlantic Masters Program

Program Overview

This interdisciplinary, two-year MA program (TAM) is a unique, international study program that prepares graduates for careers in business, administration, diplomacy, policy formulation, and research.

Students learn about EU institutions, European integration, the transatlantic relationship, and comparative welfare states. They focus on the pressing issues Europe faces today such as security, immigration, and economic disparity.

The full-time program consists of four semesters, which are completed at Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin's (HU) prestigious partner universities: University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill (UNC), University of Bath, Sciences Po Grenoble, and Università degli Studi di Siena.

Study in up to three Countries

This network of renowned universities gives students the unique opportunity to complete the program at a minimum of two and up to three different sites of their choice in the US and Europe.

All students spend the first semester at UNC and TAM offers three program tracks:

Transatlantic Studies offers the most variety in terms of overseas universities and courses taught in multiple languages. TAM students can choose to receive a Master's degree from UNC, or they may opt for a degree granted by HU or by one of the other European universities.

European Governance is a track which offers a year of study at UNC, a year overseas, increased statistical training and the option to pursue two degrees from UNC and HU simultaneously.

German-Turkish Studies is a track which provides language training in Turkish or German and enables to study in the US, Turkey and in Germany

Academic Program

TAM focuses on the comparative analysis of European and transatlantic polity, politics, and policy. Each of the program's sites have developed an individual curriculum related to these overarching themes, thereby addressing a wide variety of subjects from a multitude of academic and political perspectives. Students have the exclusive opportunity to tailor their academic program by choosing their individual study sites according to their own academic interests.

The Berlin Modules

After a pre-semester orientation week the second semester, the Specialist Module I at Humboldt-Universität focuses on „Comparative European Governments“ and „Foreign and Security Policy in Europe“.

During the third semester, the Specialist Module II concentrates on „Democracy and Democratization in Europe“ and „Europe's Borders and Neighbors“. In addition, students can choose elective courses from the broad course catalogue of all the universities in Berlin to deepen their knowledge of the many facets of transatlantic relations and Europeanization.

Admissions

TAM welcomes applicants from all over the world. The minimum entrance requirements are: a BA degree or equivalent in a relevant subject area and high proficiency in English. The GRE and TOEFL exams are also required as are letters of recommendation, a personal statement, and a writing sample.

Academic Schedule

Semester	Module	Site
1st Semester	Core Module	Chapel Hill
2nd Semester	Specialist Module I	Ankara, Bath, Berlin, Chapel Hill, Grenoble
3rd Semester	Specialist Module II	Bath, Berlin, Grenoble, Siena
4th Semester	Thesis Module	Bath, Berlin, Chapel Hill, Grenoble, Siena

Applications for the TAM program must be made through UNC.

Student Services

TAM takes student advising very seriously by providing students with comprehensive academic services. Students are assisted during the application process and receive in-depth tutoring during their studies. In addition, graduates take part in an active alumni network. Our staff has an open door policy, which makes us easily approachable at all times.

Tuition Fees

Program tuition fee will be $ 20 000 for 4 terms (or $ 25 000 for Double Degree). Students must cover the cost of living at each site.

Scholarships

A limited number of competitive fee reduction scholarships are available in recognition of high academic achievement.

